Older and mature suburban singles and couples

Who They Are

Slow-Lane Suburbs consists of a mix of older and mature singles and couples living in the suburbs of midsize cities like Thunder Bay, Cape Breton, St. John’s and Sault Ste. Marie. Most maintainers are over 55, and those still in the labour force typically hold service sector and white-collar jobs in health, food services, sales or retail. With their high school and college educations yielding middle incomes, nearly three-quarters of adults are owners of relatively inexpensive homes. Many are aging in place in a single, semi or duplex in an older neighbourhood. In Slow-Lane Suburbs, two-thirds of households consist of only one or two people. Content in their established communities, more than three-quarters of residents are third-plus-generation Canadians, and they enjoy time-honoured outdoor activities like fishing, hunting and camping. And many have time on their hands to travel to Atlantic Canada and snowbird destinations in Florida. For excitement, they like attending an auto race or golf event. Marketers can reach them with a message that aligns with their belief in Saving on Principle, emphasizing products and services for the frugal minded.

The older members of Slow-Lane Suburbs enjoy active, leisure-intensive lifestyles. They exhibit high rates for going to casinos, community theatres and beer, food and wine festivals. Around the house, they like to read a good book, have a fine meal—and then top it off with a glass of premium beer or Canadian wine. These suburbanites spend a lot of time in their cars—typically compact SUVs, midsize sedans or pickup trucks—but they have no allegiance to any make or model. With their middle incomes, they’re careful with their money, shopping at discount grocery stores, doing their own home improvement projects and carrying credit cards that have rewards programs. When they go out to eat, they head for casual restaurants like Tim Hortons, Dairy Queen and Swiss Chalet. Slow-Lane Suburbs is a prime market for traditional media. Members watch a lot of TV sports—including curling, auto racing and poker—enjoy oldies, country and classic rock radio stations, and read magazines such as Live Better and Reader’s Digest. But they claim technology intimidates them and visit only a small selection of websites at high rates.

How They Think

Today’s world can be confounding, but members of Slow-Lane Suburbs seem comfortable navigating the chaos and setting lofty goals that they strive to achieve (Personal Challenge). They adapt easily to the vagaries of modern life and express optimism for the future (Adaptability to Complexity, Personal Optimism). Patriotic Canadians, they see Canada as a land of opportunity and look to the government to perform socially beneficial functions (National Pride, North American Dream, Active Government). Yet they also are open-minded about other cultures and view diversity as a source of personal enrichment (Social Learning). At home, they enjoy showing off their belongings and thrive on the admiration of others (Status via Home, Need for Status Recognition). Many view shopping as an opportunity to acquire material goods that symbolize affluence (Ostentatious Consumption). Their faith in advertising as a reliable source of information can fuel their tendency to be impulsive consumers (Confidence in Advertising, Buying on Impulse). Although they’re guided less by logic and critical thought than by feelings and emotions, they make a conscious effort to eat a healthy diet and exercise regularly (Intuition & Impulse, Effort Toward Health).
